Dear Representative Adams,

Thank you for your service in Congress. I am one of your constituents and a member of Sardis Presbyterian Church in Charlotte. We are an Earth Care Congregation, and I am writing to urge you to preserve clean energy tax credits as you and your colleagues work on budget reconciliation.

Clean energy tax credits have spurred private investment, driven innovation, and created well-paying jobs across the country, particularly in Republican districts and states. These tax credits also lead to lower energy costs, making it more affordable for Americans to electrify their homes and transportation. In addition, supporting the transition to clean energy reduces the pollution that is so devastating, particularly in frontline communities.

Congress should protect these provisions to sustain momentum in America's clean energy leadership.

Sincerely,
